

Australia's MND March of Faces

A photographic display of people with motor neurone disease

About the ALS/MND March of Faces project

Motor neurone disease (MND) is known as amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) in some countries of the world and as MND in others. The worldwide ALS/MND March of Faces project promotes ALS/MND awareness. The March of Faces banner project was introduced to Australia by Jackie Williams, an MND Association member.

The MND NSW March of Faces banners are displayed at various MND awareness raising and remembrance events throughout the year. Images of the MND NSW banners are also displayed at www.mndnsw.org.au and are submitted to the International March of Faces project.

Participation

If you have motor neurone disease and would like to be part of Australia's MND March of Faces provide a photograph of yourself and complete this consent form. Family members are also able to submit a photograph in remembrance of a person who has died from MND. A photo and this consent form must be submitted.
